Let's Start!

Enjoy the rainforest with Amazon Tours!

Learning Outcome

Accurately use information about travel and vacations in social situations.

Ask your partner:

- Do you buy natural products? Why or why not?
- What natural products do you buy? Shampoo? Soap?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about ecological issues.
- I can give extended warnings, recommendations, or advice.
- I can talk about solutions.

Let's Explore!

Tree clearing* has to stop.

* "Tree clearing" means to cut down all of the trees in an area.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Amazon Orientation

If you want to discover a fascinating world, let our guides lead you through the rainforest.

The rainforest is home to many native people. If you choose Amazon Orientation, you meet these people. Hear them talk about the plants and animals. See how they live. Learn why tree clearing has to stop.

You can help save the rainforest! Buy shampoos and soaps made by the locals using natural resources. You can spend a day with them planting new trees. You can take home our Save the Rainforest teaching kit.

If you sign up with Amazon Orientation, you are part of our campaign. A portion of your fee goes towards protecting the rainforest!

Let's Practice!

Learning Points

Proposing Solutions

When you suggest possible solutions to a problem, you use modal verbs like can or could. You can also use the Imperative.

Problems	Possible Solutions
The native people are losing their land.	You can take home a Save the Rainforest teaching kit.
People are cutting down trees.	You can spend a day planting new trees.
The rainforest is disappearing.	Buy shampoos and soaps made by the locals using natural resources.

The Zero Conditional

You can use the Simple Present tense in a zero conditional sentence.

You can use the Imperative in a zero conditional sentence.

Examples:

- If you choose Amazon Orientation, you get a chance to meet these people. (Simple Present)
- If you sign up with Amazon Orientation, you are part of our campaign. (Simple Present)
- If you want to discover a fascinating world, let our guides lead you through the rainforest. (Imperative)
